

Buxton - Input

Released: Nov 1, 2018

Due: Nov 8, 2018

This reading comprises excerpts from a working draft of a book by Bill Buxton, a former professor (who was Jeff's PhD advisor's advisor's advisor) who is currently at Microsoft Research. Despite being a fairly rough draft, it is still by far the best reading about input techniques.

Please respond to the following prompt: In Chapters 1 or 4, are these features for classification fairly complete, or are there other ways to categorize input devices that you can think of?

Please be diligent about submitting your comment on Gradescope by 12:00pm.

Reading comments will receive 0 points if it is irrelevant, 1 point if they do not relate well to the reading, 2 points for relevant and interesting comments, and a small number of comments (about 15%) will receive 3 points for exemplary and highly insightful thoughts. Late or missing reading comments will not be graded and will receive a 0.

Keep comments below 200 words. If your comment is more than 200 words, you will not be eligible to receive the 3 points.
